

UConn HEALTH

School of Medicine

Student National Medical Association: Mentoring Mentorship Community Program

October 22, 2016
Massey Auditorium
10:00 a.m.

Medical Alumni Speaker

Kevin O. Clarke, MD, FACS

Dr Clarke is board certified in Surgery with subspecialty training in Surgical Oncology. Dr. Clarke committed to a career in medicine early in his life. A graduate of Binghamton University (BA, Biology, 1994) and the University of Connecticut School of Medicine (MD, 1998), he completed general surgery residency training at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (NJMS), where he was also chosen to be Administrative Chief Resident. He completed fellowship in Surgical Oncology at City of Hope National Cancer Center in 2006 and was subsequently recruited to join the faculty at NJMS, where in addition to patient care, he served as the Associate Program Director General Surgery Residency program and Associate Program Director General Surgery Clerkship program from 2009-2011. He was then recruited to the Department of Surgery to be Director of Surgical Oncology at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center in 2011. Dr Clarke's research interest is in cytokine environment of metastatic lymph nodes and signal transduction pathways in HCC after Oxaliplatin treatment. Dr Clarke is the recipient of numerous awards including, Golden Key National Honor Society, New Jersey Oncology Society, AACT Research Scholar and the Golden Apple Teaching Award. He is a Fellow American College of Surgeons, member of the National Medical Association, Associate Member-Society of Black Academic Surgeons, Candidate Group-American College of Surgeons, Member-New Jersey Oncology Society, Associate Member-American Association of Cancer Research, Member-Society of Surgical Oncology, Member-American Society of Clinical Oncology, and Member Association for Academic Surgery.

Supported by the Department of Health Career Opportunity Programs